OLD BATTLE FIELDS.

Long years of peace have stilled the battle-thunder,
Wild grasses quiver where the fight was won.
Masses of blossom, lightly blown asunder,
Drop down white petals on the silent gun:
For life is kind, and sweet things grow unbidden,
Turning the scenes of strife to bloomy bowers;
One only knows what secrets may be hidden
Beneath His cloud of flowers.

Poor heart above thy field of sorrow sighing
For smitten faith, and hope untimely slain,
Leave thou the soil whereon thy dead are lying
To the soft sunlight and the cleansing rain;
Love works in silence, hiding all the traces
Of bitter conflict on the trampled sod,
And time shall show thee all life's battle places
Veiled by the hand of God.

Some scoff at happy fancies,
And scorn the word "ideal;"
O, tell me what this world would be,
If everything were real.
No picture on the canvass,
No music in the heart,
None of the nameless little shams
That seem of life a part.

The clouds that paint the heavens,
With ever shifting scenes,
Be nothing but the vapor banks,
To wet the earth with rains:
No comfort from the pulpit,
No pleasure from the stage,
No day dreams for the morn of life,
No memories for old age.

SELECT STORY.

OUTWITTED;

OR, THE ACTRESS AND HER DIAMOND RING.

BY CLARENCE L. ADAMS.

Eight of us sat at breakfast one morning in Paul Ryder's rooms. It was a regular bachelor breakfast, ordered with the excellent taste that Paul always displayed when his pecuniary circumstances would permit. The dishes were delicate, the wines excellent and the coffee miraculous. The company were well-assorted also, embracing two artists, two musicians, three writers and an actor—all men of esprit and cultivation.

After a breakfast of this description, I have observed that the tendency of the conversation is generally toward the abstract and æsthetic tone. After dinner a party of young men like to be material. They talk, of course, much about women, and relate their experiences, their conquests, their disappointments, their defeats and their adventures with the other sex, in a charmingly naive and candid way—making the chat really delightful, when the parties are refined and tasteful. But in the morning, after a lighter meal, the intellect exerts a greater power than the senses; and the subject of discussion is always presented from a more metaphysical point of view.

The viands were demolished, the coffee urn emptied, and the guests satisfied. A few tall, slim-necked bottles of light wine stood upon the table, around which we sat in indolent and easy postures, listlessly smoking our cigars.

"I met our host yesterday," said Max Van Heyden, the artist, "with a most beautiful and gorgeously attired maiden on his arm. They were taking Broadway in splendid style, I can assure you. Everybody turned around to look at them as they passed."

"Ah, ha! Something new, eh, Paul?" asked Hal Forsyth, editor of the Weekly Aesthetic

"No; only Marie."

"Who is Marie?" asked the artist.

"Marie Coventry, the actress. I thought everybody knew her."

"Yes; everybody who knows you," I suggested.

"Pardon the ignorance of a poor painter, just from the distant and facetious city of Cincinnati. I am not acquainted with the fairer portion of your set yet, remember."

"Hasn't she a lovely face for a picture, Max?" asked Cecil Dasche, the other artist of the party.

"She has so. I should like to marry a wife like that and pass the remainder of my existence in painting portraits of her."

"Well," said Paul, "I guess you can marry her if you try. Women generally don't seem to object to the matrimonial condition."

"Never! never! never!" cried all in chorus.

"But has she no cavalier already—no happy man who rejoices in the possession of her heart's best affections and all that sort of thing?"

"Yes; our friend Paul is the loadstar of her love," said Sam Hackett, the pianist. "He reigns over that chameleon and intense instrument, her heart, just now."

"I don't know how long this thing will last or what will come of it. She has loved Paul now nearly three months," said Forsyth.

"I scent a marriage," added Hackett.

"Never! never!" cried the rest again.

"I am provincial." said Van Heyden, "and I suspect, too, that the slow German blood transmitted by my ancestors makes me a little hard of understanding. Therefore, I must confess that you talk of love and marriage as disconnected matters in a way that surprises me. I thought that people always married when they were in love."

A round of laughter greeted this bit of ironic humor.

"If I understand aright," pursued Van Heyden, "this lady—Miss Coventry—loves our host, Paul Ryder?',

"Rapturously!"

"Incessantly!"

"Copiously!"

"Eternally!"

"Fearfully!"

"And wonderfully!"

"Allow me to ask, then, if he reciprocates this rapturous, incessant, copious, eternal, fearful and wonderful passion?"

"Certainly," replied Paul; "you don't supppose I would be impolite enough to refuse so slight a favor to a lady?"

"Let me get this clearly into my head. Given a young maiden, beautiful and gorgeously attired. Given a young gentleman, ditto, ditto. Now the young lady, plus love for the young gentleman, and the young gentleman plus love for the young lady, make an equation which, multiplied by my idea of things, ought to equal domestic matrimonial bliss. Quod erat demonstrandum!"

"I don't see it. Mathematical, but not likely to happen. I cannot explain the relation existing between Marie and myself. I like to go to see her—to be with her—to make love to her. She, as nearly as I can judge, likes to see, to be near, to make love to me. Thus far, and no further, do we go. I have no object, save to kill time and study feminine human nature—a study I constantly pursue, without learning anything. Heaven knows what her object is. I ask her to dinner at Purcell's pretty often. Perhaps that has something to do with it. She likes good dinners!"

"No," said I; "the physiology of the human heart goes deeper than the gustatory nerves. There are various planes, or spheres, of love. The conjugal or monogamal is perhaps the finest—the most intense. Then comes the amical—that pure, intellectual love that resembles the warmest friendships among men. Then the social—that consists of admiration of beauty, brilliancy, etc., mingled with a little passion, and cemented by that undefinable, inevitable attraction that causes one sex to gravitate unconsciously toward the other."

"This is indeed mysticism," said Dasche; "how about the flirtation plane? Your classification is incomplete."

"No; the social is the plane whence flirtations arise. That is the plane of Paul and Marie."

"I am glad to learn it," said Paul.

All this conversation, with much more of the same class that followed, was duly treasured up in the bosom of one of the company—a musician, named Lisle, who was himself touched by Marie's bright eyes, and therefore inclined to be jealous of Paul Ryder. When the latter next called upon the fair actress she received him with an odd mixture of friendliness and coldness which he could not possibly understand. The fact was that everybody had been reported by Lisle, on the principle that all is fair in love and war—a principle I could never see the truth of.

Marie had intended to reject Paul's next dinner invitation with melo-dramatic scorn; but when he asked her, she thought of those dear little birds on toast—of champagne frappe—of meringues-a-la creme—and her indignation faded. She went to dinner, swallowed her anger with the comestibles, and was once more on the best of terms with the young journalist.

But Paul was exceedingly frank among his associates, and often expressed his sentiments as freely as at the breakfast party I have described; so Marie heard, through Lisle, of many light and flippant remarks concerning her. Of course, her pride or vanity, or something of that sort, was wounded; though a moment's reflection would have shown her that she had Paul in exactly the same leger estimation. Not being given to reflection, however, or, indeed, to any kind of analytical thought, she was very wroth; and with the skill of the expert actress, concocted a plan whereby she might first detect, then expose, and, lastly, humiliate him—a truly feminine revenge.

If Paul was insincere, and trifling in his expressions of devotion, he certainly was not miserly or mean in material proofs. Money was to him only a representative of pleasure, no matter what it cost, his only question was: "Have I enough money to procure it? If not, where can I get enough?"

Marie, as it happened, was very fond of diamonds, like most actresses. She had seen a beautiful single stone ring in a window on Broadway, and thought of nothing else for a week. One day, when she knew that Paul was in funds, she told him in a delicate way, of her admiration of this ring. An hour after he left her she received the jewel, with his compliments. I don't mean to say that her knowledge of his having money had anything to do with her longing for the diamond—of course not; but I merely state the fact as it was, and leave all inferences for the reader to draw.

But, in carrying out her revenge, she accepted this gift with many thanks, and treated Paul charmingly when they met again; and he made an appointment to dine with her, tete-a-tete, at her rooms—he to furnish the dinner, on the following day, at 5 o'clock.

When he sought the house, however, on the morrow, he found a young man leaning in the doorway, who eyed him narrowly.

"Excuse me, sir," said the stranger, hesitatingly: "were you going up to see Miss Coventry?"

"I was, sir."

"Well, she told me that she was compelled to disappoint you for half an hour. She is called away by urgent business connected with the theatre and cannot return before 5:30, or maybe, 6 o'clock."

"H'm; that's bad."

"She left the key with me, sir, and said you could wait in her room if you liked."

"Well, I might as well, I suppose."

They ascended together, Paul wondering who this fellow might be. Entering the room, the stranger sat down by a window, opposite Paul, and seemed strongly inclined to inaugurate a familiar conversation.

"Nice little parlor, sir," he said; "the lady lives comfortably."

"Yes."

"You are Mr. Ryder, are you not?"

"Yes."

"Ah, I thought so! I've often heard your name before."

"Yes."

"I have, indeed, sir; and generally coupled with that of Miss Coventry. You are old friends, I believe?

"Yes."

"She talks a great deal about you, sir. If you would not think me impertinent, I should say she had more than a passing fancy for you! No offense—you'll excuse me, I hope?"

"Yes."

"Well, sir, I've seen less attractive women; and I suppose you have, too?"

"Yes."

"Report sets you down as being a great admirer of hers, sir."

"Yes."

"A mere flirtation, I imagine, sir? You are popular with the sex generally, I understand, and can afford to flirt with them, eh?"

"Sir," said Paul, "I do not know who you are, nor what your object is. You question me very closely for a chance-met stranger; but let me tell you, sir, what I am never ashamed to tell anybody—that my affection for Miss Coventry is pure and genuine as affection can be. I respect and admire her above all other women; for she alone knows how to vanquish a heart that never knew love for another. Whatever you may have heard about my trifling with her is basely untrue. I am only too proud to have the opportunity to tell her sincerely and tenderly I regard her. Are you satisfied, sir?"

"Oh, perfectly, sir! I'm sure that I meant nothing, sir. I beg a thousand pardons!"

"You are entirely excusable; but now, if you please, I will leave you. I have to order dinner for Miss Coventry and myself, to be sent here. It is nearly time for her to return, I think. Good day, sir."

"Good day."

The dinner was ordered and Paul returned. He found Marie alone, in splendid spirits.

"Who was that officious little fellow you left word for me with, Marie?"

"Oh! only a little cousin of mine—a good boy, but inquisitive. Did he bore you?"

"No. He asked me all sorts of questions; and I astonished him by telling the truth—something I don't often do."

A few days afterward Paul told me this story, repeating the conversation as nearly as he could remember it.

"But what on earth did you tell a stranger such solemn nonsense for? First love!—bah! Sincere and tender affection! foh! You must have been crazy."

"No; I was only smart."

"I recognized my inquisitive youth."

"Oh, it was some one you knew?"

"Excellently well. I once saw Marie act Alexander Panels, in the 'School for Tigers.' She makes a splendid boy. I mightn't have known her if I hadn't seen the diamond on her forefinger. She forgot to take that off; and, as it cost me $83, I remembered it."

"Then it was all a trick to get your real opinion of her?"

"Yes; and I don't think she got far ahead of me, eh?"—[N. Y. Mercury.

How Near Daniel Webster Came to Being President.

"It is not generally known," said Thurlow Weed to me Monday evening after a rubber at whist—for, though he can no longer make out the faces of friends, he can still see cards, when placed in a good light—"It is not generally known how near Webster came to being President."

"It is generally known," I said, "that he was a candidate for the Whig nomination five times and missed it every time."

"Yes," he acquiesced, "but he came a good deal nearer than that—a good deal nearer. I had always been among his most profound admirers, and wanted to see him President in 1840. But it became obvious to me during the winter, that he couldn't get the nomination, that Harrison was leading. I went down to Washington early in the spring and called him into the cloak-room. 'I think I shall be the Whig candidate,' he said. I expressed my doubt of it. 'Who will be, then?' he asked. 'It looks to me like Harrison,' I answered. He almost sneered at the idea. He naturally had but little respect for mere military men, and he exclaimed, 'It is impossible that a man so ignorant as he and so lacking in every quality of a chief magistrate, can be nominated for such a place.' I told him it was simply a question of who could poll the most votes; then I got him to sit down and look over my figures. They didn't convince him, of course.

"Why, you don't act as if you believed it yourself,' he said, 'for you have chosen a Scott delegation from your own State.' That was to prevent the appointment of a Clay delegation,' I said, 'and Clay cannot be elected if nominated. But Mr. Webster,' I went on, 'I haven't come to Washington to get you to withdraw your name, but to ask you to accept the nomination for Vice-President in case Harrison shall be selected for the first place.' No, he wouldn't listen to such a proposal, and he refused with quite as much spirit as the occasion called for. So I came home and Harrison was nominated and John Tyler was made his Vice, and by the death of Harrison, Tyler became President a month after the election. Webster saw the fatal mistake he had made, and the next time I saw him—he was then Tyler's Secretary of State—he confessed it to me.

"Well curiously enough, that wasn't the last of his fatal mistakes. In 1848 the very same thing happened right over again. In 1844 Clay had been defeated and taken out of the way, and now Webster thought he would walk over the course. I saw that General Taylor was pretty likely to be the man, for after the Mexican War there was a great furor over Taylor. During the spring before the nomination I went over to Marshfield. 'Well, what do you think of it this time?' asked Mr. Webster, with a smile of security.

"I think this time,' I said 'that General Taylor will be the man.'

"He was astounded. It didn't look so at all to him. He thought it a very wild guess. 'Do you seriously think,' he asked, 'that such a man can be nominated?' I assured him that I thought it very probable. Taylor was then designated by those who did not admire him as 'an illiterate frontier colonel who hasn't voted for forty years,' and Webster seemed to sympathise with this view. I then appealed to him to accept the nomination for Vice President under Taylor. He remembered his former mistake, and smiled, and said at last that he would consult his two best friends, George Ashmun, of Massachusetts, and Senator Wilson, of New Hampshire, and do as they said.

"They were summoned and came. I met them at Mr. Webster's and presented my figures. They were nonplussed at first, but came finally to my conclusion that Taylor's nomination was probable, and they joined me in advising Mr. Webster to be cotent with second place if the first should prove beyond his reach. He reluctantly agreed to it, and I was authorized to see the arrangement carried out. Just at that point his son, Fletcher, came home from town and he rediculed the scheme so energetically and so bitterly that his father returned to his original position, and refused to have anything to do with my proposal. Well, the Vice Presidency went begging. The name of Fillmore was suddenly sprung on the Convention and he was put on the ticket. Taylor and he were elected; Taylor died in four months, and Fillmore became President and Webster went down to Washington and served as Secretary of State, as he had similary served the accidental Taylor! I think the pair of curious mishaps did a great deal to sour him, and perhaps to make him reckless in his personal habits."—W. A. Croffutt's Letter in Detroit Post and Tribune.

Swords.

One of the most clearly marked differences between man and the brute beasts lies in the fact that with his own unaided strength man is seldom able to take the life of his fellow-beings. Consequently, when we wish to put ourselves upon a level with the tiger and the wolf, and to qualify ourselves for the shedding of blood and the taking of life, we are obliged to find some other weapons than those nature has given us. Here and there may be a man who can kill another man by the exertion of his unassisted strength, but it is very seldom indeed that human life is taken by human beings without use of an artificial weapon.

The first weapon used by man was probably a club; and it is also likely that in time this was made of very hard wood, and somewhat sharpened on one or more sides, so as to inflict a more deadly wound. Wooden weapons of this kind are now in use by some savage races. Then it was found that more effective weapons of the sort could be made of a harder substance, and short, unwieldy swords were hewn out of stone, very much as our Indians made their arrow-heads of flint. But a sword of this kind, although a terrible weapon in the hands of a strong man, was brittle and apt to break; and so, in time, when the use and value of metals came to be understood, swords were made of these substances. The early Romans, and some other nations, had strong, heavy swords made of bronze. But when iron and steel came into use, it was quickly perceived that they were the metals of which offensive weapons should be made.

By a careful study of the form and use of the sword, from its first invention until the present time, we may get a good idea of the manner in which, in various ages, military operations were carried on. At first, men fought at close quarters, like the beasts they imitated. But as the arts of warfare began to be improved, and as civilization and enlightenment progressed, men seemed anxious to get farther and farther away from one another when they fought, and so the sword gradually became longer and longer, until, in the Middle Ages, a man's sword was sometimes as long as himself.

But there is a limit to this sort of thing, and when the use of projectiles which would kill at a great distance became general, it was found that a soldier was seldom near enough to his enemy to reach him with his sword; and at the present day it is seldom used in actual warfare except by cavalrymen, and these frequently depend as much on the fire-arms they carry as upon their sabres. It is said that cavalry charges, in which the swords of the riders are depended upon to rout the enemy, do not frequently occur in the warfare of the present day; and those naval battles of which we have read, where the opposing ships are run side by side, and the sailors of one, cutlass in hand, spring upon the deck of the other, and engage in a hand to hand fight, are now seldom heard of. Our iron-clad ships fire at one another from a great distance, or one of them comes smashing into another with its terrible steel ram; and a sword would be a very useless thing to a modern sailor. Our armies lie a mile or two apart, and pop at each other with long-range rifles and heavy cannon, and to the great body of the opposing forces swords would be only an incumberance.—From "Swords," by John Lewees, in St. Nicholas for July.

Love-Making and Marriage Among the Choctaws Still Living in Mississippi.

The two thousand Choctaws still living in their ancestral homes in Mississippi retain in their pristine vigor many of the usages of their ancestors. Among these are the methods employed in conducting a courtship and the marriage ceremony. When a young Choctaw, of Kemper or Neshoba county, sees a maiden who pleases his fancy, he watches his opportunity until he finds her alone. He then approaches within a few yards of her and gently casts a pebble toward her, so that it my fall at her feet. He may have to do this two or three times before he attracts the maiden's attention. If this pebble throwing is agreeable, she soon makes it manifest; if otherwise, a scornful look and a decided "ckwah" indicate that his suit is in vain.

When a marriage is agreed upon the lovers appoint a time and place for the ceremony. On the marriage day the friends and relatives of the prospective couple meet at their respective houses or villages and there march toward each other. When they arrive near the marriage ground—generally intermediate space between the two villages—they halt within about a hundred yards of each other. The brothers of the woman then go across to the opposite party and bring forward the man and set him down on a blanket spread upon the marriage ground. The man's sisters then do likewise by going over and bringing forward the woman and seating her by the side of the man. Sometimes, to furnish a little merriment for the occasion, the woman is expected to break loose and run. Of course she is pursued, captured and brought back.

All parties assemble around the expectant couple. A bag of bread is brought forward by the woman's relatives and deposited near her. In like manner the man's relatives bring forward a bag of meat and deposit it near him. The man's friends and relatives now begin to throw presents upon the head and shoulders of the woman. These presents are of any kind that the donors choose to give, as articles of clothing, money, trinkets, ribbons, etc. As soon as thrown they are quickly snatched off by the woman's relatives and distributed among themselves. During all this time the couple sit very quietly and demurely, not a word spoken by either. When all the presents have been thrown and distributed the couple, now man and wife, arise, the provisions from the bags are spread and, just as civilized life, the ceremony is rounded off with a festival. The festival over, the company disperse and the gallant groom conducts his bride to his home, where they enter upon the toils and responsibilities of the future.—Natchez Democrat.

Margaret, the Mother of Criminals.

E. V. Smally describes "A Great Charity Reform" in the July Century, which has been due in the conception and mainly in the execution to the charitable work of Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler, of New York City, the leading member of "The State Charities Aid Association." The influence of heredity in crime is forcibly illustrated as follows:

At one of the meetings of the Association, when the subject of preventing pauperism by giving a proper training to the children of paupers was under consideration, Dr. Elisha Harris related the terrible story of "Margaret, the Mother of Criminals." It has been published in the newspapers, but can profitably be read again to illustrate the great importance of one branch of the Association's work. Margaret was a pauper child left adrift in one of the villages on the upper Hudson, about ninety years ago. There was no alms-house in the place, and she was made a subject of out-door relief, receiving occasionally food and clothing from the town officials, but was never educated nor sheltered in a proper home. She became the mother of a long race of criminals and paupers, which has cursed the county ever since. The county records show two hundred of her descendants who have been criminals. In one generation of her unhappy line there were twenty children, of whom seventeen lived to maturity. Nine served terms aggregating fifty years in the State Prison for high crimes, and all the others were frequent inmates of jails and alms-houses. It is said, that of six hundred and twenty-three descendants of this outcast girl, two hundred committed crimes which brought them upon the court records, and most of the others were idiots, drunkards, lunatics, paupers, or prostitutes. The cost to the county of this race of criminals and paupers is estimated as at least one hundred thousand dollars, taking no account of the damage they inflicted upon property and the suffering and degradation they caused in others Who can say that all this loss and wretchedness might not have been spared the community if the poor pauper girl Margaret had been provided with a good moral home-life while she was growing up to womanhood?

Stopped His Paper.

Now a-days when a subscriber gets so mad because an editor differs with him on some trival question that he discontinues his paper, we remind him of a good anecdote of the late Horace Greeley, the well known editor of the New York Tribune. Passing down Newspaper Row in New York city one morning, he met one of his readers, who exclaimed:

"Mr. Greeley, after the article you published this morning, I intend to stop your paper."

"Oh no," said Mr. Greeley, "don't do that."

"Yes, sir, my mind is made up. I shall stop the paper."

"The angry subscriber was not to be appeased, and they seperated. Late in the afternoon the two met again, when Mr. Greeley remarked:"

"Mr. Thomas I am very glad you did not carry out your threat this morning."

"What do you mean?"

"Why you said you were going to stop my paper."

"And so I did. I went to the office and had my paper stopped."

"You are surely mistaken; I have just come from there and the press was running and business was booming."

"Sir," said Mr. Thompson, very pompously, "I ment I intended to stop my subscription to your paper."

"Oh! thunder!" rejoined Greeley; "I thought you were going to stop the running of my paper, and knock me out of a living. My friend, let me tell you something: One man is just one drop of water in the ocean. You didn't see the machinery of this world in motion, and you can't stop it; and when you are underneath the ground things upon the surface will wag on the same as ever."

Turning Negroes White.

A Cincinnati physician, one Dr. Quirell, has discovered a drug which turns the negro's skin to white. The discovery, according to the editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, was accidental. He was treating a dark mulatto woman for a tumor, and shortly after beginning the treatment white patches appeared on her skin. As she took more of the drug the patches increased in size, and at the present time more than one-half of her person is white. She has been taking the medicine for three years. The color of the altered epidermis is a warm white, undistinguishable from the ordinary Caucasian hue. It will take but a couple of years more to transform the woman into a pure white female. Thinking that there might be something peculiar in the woman's case which affected the skin. Dr. Quirell has experimented on a negro boy who came to him for treatment for a disease which permitted the use of the same drug. Shortly after it was administered the white blotches began to appear on his skin. The Doctor declines telling the name of his drug as yet, as he has not completed his investigations, but he believes he holds in his hands the sponge that will wipe out the color line entirely. Now that science has taken up the problem it will be altogether impossible to tell whether a new acquaintance is a white man or a galvanized darkey.

They were talking of the innumerable caravan of colored men, now passing to the tomb, who had once been coachmen to the Father of his Country. Brown said they were one and all imposters. "You wrong them," said Fogg. "Why I can show you a man, a friend of mine, who has seen Washington." "Nonsense!" exclaimed Brown. "I'll bet you something on that." "What shall it be?" "A dinner for three." "Done." Fogg retired, returning a moment later with a youngish-looking fellow. "Here he is," said Fogg. "What!" cried Brown, "do you mean to say you have seen Washington?" "Oh, yes, was the quiet reply; "lived there two winters." Brown paid for the dinners without a whimper.

THE COLUMBIAN.

C. E. ELWELL,
J. K. BITTENBENDER, } Editors.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

—FRIDAY, JUNE 30rd, 1882.—

The Democratic Convention is still in session at Harrisburg as we go to press. Robert E. Pattison of Philadelphia was nominated for Govenor on Wednesday evening, and it is everywhere conceded to be a strong nomination. An excellent platform was adopted and harmony prevails.

The assessment of public servants for campaign expenses was the leading subject of discussion in both houses of Congress yesterday. In such a discussion the Democrats have both law and morals altogether on their side and they were helped by the lamentable fact that scarcely a Republican in either branch had the courage to disavow, manfully and unequivocally, the infamous abuse. There was, of course, the usual flimsy pretext of "voluntary contributions," but no one was willing to say that an official who declined to make a "voluntary contribution" would not lose his place. It is humiliating that a form of oppression and robbery that would not be tolerated in Russia should not only find apologists in the American Congress, but should actually be accepted as the policy of the dominant party. We should expect that all save trading politicians of the lowest class would make haste to repudiate the lawless insolence of the Hubbell and the Coppers. Instead of that this absolutely indefensible wrong is virtually made a party issue and the spoils system in its most offensive form is openly flaunted in the face of the public. The report of yesterday's Congressional proceedings will form the best Democratic campaign document of the present year.—Times, June 27th.

The move which is being made by congress toward the reduction of internal revenue taxation is not made willingly by the republicans, and they can claim no credit for it. The democratic minority have made persistent and united efforts to force some legislation on this subject, but they have been stubbornly opposed at every step by the republicans. The selfish republican leaders care nothing for the people so long as the treasury is full and their party is in power. The democrats heed the popular voice and they know that the people favor the reduction of burdensome taxation. It is all very well for the republican newspapers to refer sarcastically to the "rant about the workingmen's taxed shirt and taxed shoes, taxed wool and taxed blanket," but there is no humorous side to this question for the workingmen. He was promised prosperous times under republican rule, but on the contrary he finds himself out of employment and out of bread, and when he turns to the party which was to bring the blessings of prosperity he finds it arrayed against the reduction of the taxes which take his hard earnings from his pocket. The democratic party in the strong effort it is making in congress to compel the reduction of internal revenue, is showing itself to be the true friend of a tax-ridden people.—Patriot.

HIS FATE SEALED.

Strong appeals were made to the President last week, by Mr. Reed, and the society for the protection of the insane, to grant a respite to Guiteau until next fall, so that his case might be taken before the Supreme Court of the United States. A cabinet meeting was held at which the whole matter was discussed, and Attorney-General Brewster read an opinion in which he says a respite ought not to be granted as the sanity of the prisoner was fully established at the trial. Guiteau was informed of this decision on Saturday morning, and received the intelligence with apparent indifference. He is not allowed to see any one but his guards and spiritual adviser. The execution will take place to-day (Friday) and but few spectators will be admitted.

Death of the Man who wanted to Freeze Guiteau.

Job Harvey Ridgeway, inventer of the Ridgeway Refrigerator System, and whose novel proposition to freeze the body of Guiteau and exhibit it for the benefit of the relatives of the assassin attracted widespread attention some time since, died on Sunday at his residence in Philadelphia.

At the close of Guiteau's trial, and when it became a certainty that the assassin would meet the fate of murderers, Mr. Ridgeway made a proposition to Guiteau's relatives, through the assassin's counsel and brother-in-law, George Scoville, to take possession of the body after death, preserve it in his patent refrigerating apparatus and exhibit it throughout the United States and Europe; the understanding being that one-half of the receipts was to be given to Guiteau's relatives, while the other half was to be retained by the inventor. In reply Scoville stated that the relatives were inclined to regard the proposition favorably. The extensive publication at the time of these facts, however, quickly led to a more serious consideration of the proposition upon the part of the assassin's relatives, and finally led to its rejection. Mr. Ridgeway's proposition in detail, as described by himself at the time, was to take possession of the remains after the brain had been removed for postmortem examination, place it in one of his patent refrigerating cases and exhibit it in all of the principal cities in this country and Europe. The case designed for the purpose was to be ten feet square, three sides of which were to be of glass, so that the whole interior would be plainly visible. The fourth side was to be reserved for the refrigerating apparatus, consisting of a series of v-shaped metallic troughs, extending from side to side in a slanting zig-zag manner, and into which was to be placed the freezing mixture, composed chiefly of ice and salt.

It was the intention of Mr. Ridgeway to have the case upholstered and finished in the most elaborate manner. In addition to this he contemplated making an outlay of $25,000 for the construction of a handsome refrigerating car in which to transport the case from place to place. The enterprising inventor calculated upon making, at the least, by the scheme $500,000, which amount, according to the agreement, was to be equally divided between the relatives of the assassin and himself. It is a singular coincidence and one worthy of special note that the proposition of this remarkable idea died just five days before the execution of the depraved assassin whose remains he intended to exhibit throughout the civilized world.

POLITICAL ASSESSMENTS.

The Republican Congressional committee has sent out circulars to every person in the employ of the United States, asking for a "voluntary contribution" to the campaign corruption fund, and the amount that each one is expected to pay is designated. The laborer, who is getting two dollars a day is asked for twelve dollars, one week's wages, and all who are receiving salaries are assessed two per cent. In Philadelphia alone this amounts to more than twenty five thousand dollars. While the circular only requests a "voluntary contribution", it is very well understood that any one who does not comply with it will be placed on the "black list" and runs the risk of losing his position. It will be remembered that the Civil Service Reform Association of Philadelphia has been very diligent in its efforts to secure the abolition of this custom and has taken frequent action in relation thereto. At a special meeting of the executive committee November 10, 1881, a committee of five was constituted to wait upon the official head of each Federal department in the city to inquire whether he was aware that such an assessment had been made in the department, whether it had his sanction and whether the fear which employees express of being placed on the black list, or otherwise molested, for refusal to pay for or to do political work was a well-grounded apprehension. The committee reported in a way that substained the charges, and in conclusion said: "If, therefore a candid and manly expression of disapproval of enforced assessments could be obtained from President Arthur, it would be in the highest degree valuable. If such an expression were refused, we should, at all events, know the ground we stand on and be prepared to carry on our agitation in the most effective way." Accordingly the executive committee mailed to the President on March 15, 1882, a copy of the report, together with a letter and a memorial, in which his attention was called to the custom, and he was requested to "at once and permanently relieve Federal office-holders from all risk of removal by reason of their not paying assessments levied upon them to furnish funds for partisan use in State or municipal elections." The receipt of this memorial was acknowledged by the President's private secretary on March 17, 1882. Learning that the custom of assessments was pursued and being satisfied that President Arthur had been heedless to their entreaty a second letter was sent to him, but they received no response. On Tuesday of last week, at a meeting of the executive committee of the association, a minute was adopted setting forth that President Arthur had in his letter of acceptance of the Vice Presidency and in his first message to Congress after he had become President affirmed his approval of and his intention to carry out the principles of civil service reform, but having disregarded his pledges to the nation the association put upon record its belief that he is accessory to the abuses, and it called upon the citizens to express by voice and vote, whenever and whenever practicable, their determination that he be held responsible for the continuance of these abuses.

The Civil Service Reform Association of New York has sent circulars to office holders assessed by this committee warning them that the assessment is a violation of law, and all who pay such assessments are liable to prosecution. In response to this, Mr. Hubbell, chairman of the committee has addressed a letter to the President of the Association as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTIVES,
WASHINGTON, June 22.

SIR: I understand that a circular signed by you has been sent to large numbers of persons employed in the service of the United States, advising them to refrain from complying with the request of the Republican Congressional committee for contributions to its campaign fund. In this circular you state that "in the opinion of counsel, as the members of the Republican Congressional committee are officers of the United States Government, all persons making contribution to such committee will render themselves liable under section 6, chapter 287, United States Statutes." If it be the law that persons paying become liable to a penalty, I, being a member of Congress and the treasurer who receives the payment, am also liable. I am willing to meet you on this question anywhere or at any time, and to unite with you in requesting the President to ask an opinion of the Attorney General. If you desire any other form or action in any tribunal which can give an immediate consideration of the point, I will join you in testing the soundness of the circular, and I invite you to this mode of of settlement as both more manly and more honorable than your attempt to confuse the action or alarm the minds of the employes alluded to. The law is misstated in your circular and the alarm you seek to create is without justincation in the law. Your "counsel," to whom you vaguely allude, either misunderstands or perverts it. Disdaining to seek shelter behind any cover, I, therefore, challenge you to the steps necessary to an immediate determination of the degree of responsibility which is attached to this fact, and to the correctness of your circular which I distinctly deny.

The law of the country forbids such assessments, and the Republican convention of May 10th at Harrisburg adopted the following resolution: Resolved, that we condemn compulsory assessments for political purposes, and prescription for failure to respond either to such assessments or to requests for voluntary contributions." Of so much worth is their pretensions!

Brewster on Bosses.

THE DISTINGUISHED ATTORNEY GENERAL'S PLAIN TALK OF FIVE YEARS AGO.

The Independent Voter will be felt. The time has come now to establish the government in all its details, general and local, in the hands, not of cabals, but of those who represent the people and who possess their offices only to perform their duties with ability and fidelity.

This State has been and is at the mercy of the worst men in it. They have plundered and abused its resources, and they have degraded its public life by intruding into all offices of dignity or profit the worst men that could be found, taking the obscure, rapacious, lawless and ignorant, and excluding the pure, honest, single-minded and well-informed. They have dragged the fame of the Commonwealth into the filth of faction.

At Washington we have not been represented, except by their instruments, who have made us there and throughout the whole country the subjects of reproach and odium. The people have no say in the selection of their candidates and oftentimes in their election. They nominate by fraud and return as elected by fraud men who are only known to the public by their infamous careers. We are now on the eve of a revolution when such men must pass away. Had they governed purely and justly, had the people that they put in power from time to time been dutiful and truthful, and had their conduct been for the public good and not for private gain or personal malice, there would have been a healthier tone in the public mind now, and we never would have witnessed, in a free country like this, open rebellion against the law such as we've seen within the last two months. Our cities and their people and their property would not have been exposed to rapine and pillage and fire and murder if the people had not been disgusted with the lawless acts and lawless lives of their public men. Such things can never happen in free Commonwealths unless they have ceased practically to be free. In monarchies they are the just judgments of an outraged people rising up against personal tyranny. In republics they are testimonies against abuses which have degraded citizens to the level of outraged subjects.

HIS BLAST AGAINST CAMERON.

Last winter our people were shocked with the election of J. Donald Cameron, the irresponsible son of a Senator of whom I will not speak, because he and his acts have become a part of public history and must be measured with more deliberation than can be given in a casual conversation like this—a son that has neither mind, attainments, dignity of character, knowledge of public affairs, party services or personal worth to warrant his advancement, and who has no record but a bad one as an intriguer and manager of bad men. He was first forced into the War Department, as the price of his offer to betray his State and renominate General Grant, and after being there he was so base-born in his notions of decency and gentlehood as to solicit and urge, by all the mean arts of political contrivance, that he should be retained as the companion of Cabinet officers and gentlemen who did not want him. Failing in that, by the coarse brute force of organized power he jostled his old father out of his place, and thrust himself into a Senate where he will be an object of derision and disgust. The public are sick of these odious men, and the public will do away with them. We have destroyed human bondage in the South; we will next break down political bondage in the North and South.—Part of an interview in Philadelphia Times of Sept. 14, 1877.

Miss Belle Caldwell of Danville, is visiting Miss Ada Hartman.

Miss Richart of West Pittston and Miss Dean of Danville, are the guests of Miss Annie and Ida Bernhard.

Rev. Joseph A. Russell and wife were in town this week. Mr. Russell was rector of the Episcopal church twenty years ago, and has many old friends here. He is now in living Topeka, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Church of Ashland, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sickler of Tunkhannock, and Miss Nellie Cooley of Wilkes Barre, were among the strangers who attended the commencement exercises.

Judge, and Mrs. Elwell, and son Charles will spend July in Wisconsin visiting relatives.

M. L. Snyder Esq., of Sunbury is in town visiting friends, and attending the exercises of commencement week.

Rev. Kelley of Stewertville, N. J. formerly pastor of the Lutheran Church at Espy, was visiting friends in this section during the past week.

William Neal and family, Col. McClure and wife, Miss Ella McKinney, Miss Leach and a number of others, making a party of fifteen, went to William Cole's at the foot of North Mountain on Wednesday to spend two weeks.

Lock Haven will have a big celebration on the Fourth.

Mathias Kindt lost his valuable stallion, John, on the 13th of June, from lung fever.

There were forty-four deaths from yellow fever at Havana last week.

New styles of calling cards and card type just received at the COLUMBIAN office.

There is to be a general advance of wages all along the line in the Luzerne region, and the coal miners are happy.

The M. E. Sunday school, Afton, Pa. will hold a festival on next Saturday evening, July 8th.

The annual election of officers of Winona Fire Company will take place next Monday evening. A full attendance is desired.

C. A. Prentiss while at work on a lathe accidentally got his finger in the cogs and had part of it torn off.

The band was out serenading last Monday evening and favored a number of families with their fine music.

Bloomsburg is to have some excitement on the Fourth after all. Main's circus will be here.

Pens, pencils, pen holders, ink, rubbers, mucilage in great variety at the COLUMBIAN store.

We learn that A. C. Smith Esq., will soon go to Scranton to practice law permanently. H. E. Smith Esq., will continue his practice here.

The lady friends of the Bloomsburg Cornet Band will have a festival at Evans' Hall this Friday and Saturday evenings. Patronize them.

The sociable given by the young ladie's Guild of St. Paul's P. E. Church, at the Rectory on Thursday and Friday evenings last week cleared about twenty-five dollars.

The gold mining fever has reached Harrisburg and several capitalists have enlisted with Dr. Smith in the prospecting enterprise now progressing on South mountain.

There will be a festival in the Grove near Benton on July 4th, for the benefit of the Benton band. Other bands have been invited and are expected to be present. A general good time is anticipated.

The picnic season has come. Last Friday the members of the Presbyterian Church held one at Rupert, and on Saturday, the Model school of the Normal enjoyed themselves in Barton's woods.

A party of young men, students of Cornell college, recently started in an open boat from some point on the Susquehanna above the York State line, their destination being Harrisburg.

In the suit of Captain Brockway by his assignee against Senator Buckalew, on arbitration on Monday and Tuesday at the Court House, after a full trial on the merits an award was made in favor of the Defendant for $47.80.

On Friday and Saturday evenings last week there was an abundance of festival in town. The Methodist congregation held one in Sterner's building and cleared about $75.00, and the Reform congregation had one at Evans' Hall, making about $80.00.

Smokers must now lay in a sufficient supply of cigars on Saturday to last over Sunday. Constable Woodward last week notified all persons dealing in tobacco that the law would be enforced against those who sell on Sunday.

Samuel Seybert, an old resident of this county, dropped dead at his daughter's in Orange township Friday last. He was apparently in good health, except that he had been afflicted with rheumatism. The funeral took place at Light Street, the burial being at Orangeville on Saturday.

The monthly Gospel Temperance meeting will be held on Tuesday evening July 4th in the Evangelical Church on Fourth street commencing at 8 o'clock. The subject of Temperance in our Sabbath schools will be discussed. All Sabbath school teachers and officers are earnestly requested to be present.

By referring to time table at head of local column may be found the changes in the L. & B. R. R. and their connections with other roads. An important change in the connection with the Williamsport accommodation at Northumberland takes you to Philadelphia at 2.55 in the morning instead of 8 o'clock as heretofore.

John Fisher, a boy about fifteen years of age, while coupling cars in a mine at Plymouth fell under the cars and was instantly killed on Friday last. The car ran over the centre of his body crushing him to death. He was a son of Jacob Fisher of this place.

All the coupons remaining on Normal School bonds will be paid upon presentation to the Treasurer at the store of Clark & Son. H. J. CLARK, Treasurer.

The Department of Public Instruction has stricken from the provisional certificate the figures 4 and 5. Superintendents are therefore no longer asked to license teachers who pass a poor examination.

Rev. J. B. Grier of Danville preached the Baccalaureate sermon before the class of 1882 at the Opera House on Sunday morning, a very large congregation being present. Revs. D. J. Waller Sr., Donahue, Mitchell and Prof Curran assisted in the exercises. Mr. Grier preached in the Presbyterian Church in the evening.

Within the last few weeks thirty Hungarians, and Poles suffering from scurvy in its worst form as well as pneumonia, have been admitted to the Luzerne county hospital. The disease is ascribed to the almost exclusive use of salt meat by and the unclean habits of the imported laborers about the mines.

The office of the Register and Recorder has been newly papered and painted and presents a greatly improved appearance. Mr. Sterner takes a good deal of pride in having a neat and clean office, and these improvements were made by the commissioners at his solicitation and on the recommendation of the grand jury. They were badly needed.

Just received a new lot of Elgin, Waltham, Springfield and other make of watches in open and hunting cases, warranted from two to five years.

Also silver plated teaspoons one dollar a set, table spoons two dollars a set, at L. Bernhard's Jewelry Store. 6 9-tf

The Espy Hotel, kept by that popular landlord, Jacob Miller, has just been undergoing thorough repairs. It has been newly papered, painted inside and out, shutters have been put on the windows and a veranda built to the front. The house is well kept and deserves the reputation that Mr. Miller has made for it. The property belongs to John Appleman and William Shaffer, who have made the improvements.

Col. L. L. Tate, the veteran editor of the Lycoming Chronicle completed his seventy-second year last Friday, and is still in the enjoyment of good health, and the mental vigor that has characterized him as an able editor for many years. We hope he may continue to wear the editorial harness for years to come. Here is what the Colonel says of the occasion:

"Three score-and-ten, with two years additional, is a long time, and yet it seems comparatively a mere 'span in the flight of time.' During the above named period, we have spent a few months over half a century in the editorial harness, and established and conducted eleven Democratic newspapers, the last and best being the beautiful Lycoming Chronicle."

The town council held a special meeting on Monday night and decided finally not to take water for fire protection. A resolution was offered providing that the matter be referred to the court, but this was voted down, the President of the council remarking that they had been in court once and had got the worst of it, by the importation of a Judge from another district "under a cloak." Just what he meant we cannot say, but it sounds very much like an insult to the Judge of this county as well as to the one who was called here to preside in the injuction suit. Having got justice once the President of the council evidently fears he will get it again, if he goes into court.

[Communicated.]

Mr. J. Freas Conner, a life long resident of this county, having recently sold his farms in Centre township, the one known as the Conner homestead to his brother George and the Hill farm to G. W. Creveling, brought his family to Bloomsburg with the intention to retire from active life and educate his children.

After visiting his brother and sister in Trenton, N. J. and spending some time in the cities, New York and Philadelphia, he returned to Bloomsburg and taking with him his son Thomas who had just disposed of his stock of groceries to F. S. Kinports, Mr. Conner took a trip West visiting several states and finally purchasing two tracts of land about two and a half miles from Holton, Jackson county, Kansas, the one a cultivated farm of 160 acres improved and stocked, and the other a prairie tract of the same size.

Returning about three weeks ago he made haste to dispose of his personalty and prepare to remove with his family to their new home. On Tuesday of this week, June 27th, the family and friends met in reunion at Mrs. Hannah Conner's on East street, and the married sons, Thomas, Isaac, and William, deciding not to accompany their parents at present, it was thought best to marry a daughter before starting. Accordingly at ten o'clock the oldest daughter Emma, was joined in holy wedlock with James Kelchner, oldest son of Aaron Kelchner of Fowlersville, Rev. Stuart Mitchell officiating.

At 11:45 A. M. Mr. and Mrs. Conner, their two sons, John and Andreas, their two daughters, Hannah and Millie and Mr. and Mrs. Kelchner took the South bound train for the West via Harrisburg, Fort Wayne and Kansas City.

Ordinarily but forty-eight hours are required to run from Harrisburg to Holton, consequently if nothing happens, the rising sun on Friday morning will shine upon our Columbia county neighbors in their new home in Jackson county, Kansas, more than fifteen hundred miles distant. Wishing them a pleasant trip and hoping they may find the country they have adopted, more pleasant even than anticipated, we wait to hear from them trusting they may meet with abundant success and return to visit us ere long.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelchner we are informed expect to return in about four or six weeks.

Improvements.

Jeremiah Hess is enlarging and much improving his house on East street.

The plasterers are at work at Mrs. Purcel's house on Market street.

David Stroup's double houses on Fourth street are ready for the plasterers.

Painters are busy in ornamenting the steeple of the M. E. Church. The roof is finished.

Property holders on Fourth street are laying pavements.

Rev. D. J. Waller has removed his barn from Fifth street.

M. F. Eyerly had a new tin roof put on his dwelling on Market street.

Looking Through a Telescope.

Large crowds were observed last week gathered around a Telescope man at the corner of Eighth and Market Streets. Our reporter stopped to ascertain the cause of so much excitement, paid his five cents for a look and discovered across the face of the moon at which the "scope" was pointed. "Best things for a Cold—Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup." He just concluded that Dr Bull was a high old advertiser, and that Bull's Cough Syrup was the best thing out. Some one had stuck a strip with those words across the end of the glass. (Philadelphia Pa Traveler.)

Greenback Convention.

The Convention of the National Greenback party of this county met in convention at Espy on the 24th inst. J. B. Robison Esq. presided, and J. C. Sylvis was chosen secretary. The following ticket was nominated: For Legislature, John Hampton, of Roaring Creek and Clark Merrill of Greenwood, Sheriff, Douglass Megargle, of Orange, Coroner, Samuel McKamey, of Scott. Congressional conferees, J. M. Hower and J. C. Sylvis. Senatorial conferees, H. C. Hower and Robert Howell. Robert Howell was elected chairman of county committee. After transacting some other important business the convention adjourned.

Fourth of July.

A celebration and basket picnic will be held by the citizens of Bloomsburg and surrounding country on next Tuesday, July 4th at Oak Grove, Fifth street. Mr. Jerry Saltzer will furnish organ and piano, and enlivening music will be given. The citizens are requested to meet on Market Square at 10 a. m. and march to the grove headed by the Espy Cornet Band. The exercises at the grove will consist of reading of the Declaration of Independence, music by Saltzer's Glee Club and the Espy Cornet Band. Hervy E. Smith, Esq., will be the orator of the day. In the evening there will be a baloon ascension and fire works under the supervision of Thomas Webb.

Burglary.

Henry Kleim's grocery on East street was entered last Tuesday night by some person or persons unknown, and a show case containing cigars and some other articles was stolen, six dollars in money were taken from the drawer. The entrance was effected through the window. This was a very bold robbery as the family lives in the same building, and owing to the heat the upper windows were probably open in that as well as the neighboring houses. The show case was a small one, but large enough to be unhandy for a burglar to carry around with him. It was locked, and was probably carried to some convenient spot and broken open. The country is full of thieves, and too much care cannot be exercised in making all the doors and windows secure at night.

Catawissa Locals.

Strawberries of a fine quality are plenty and cheap.

Samuel Frederick is building a new house on Main street. Charles Krug of your town is the contractor.

Daniel Helwig, an old and respected citizen of this town, died on Monday after a protracted illness.

The construction train on the N. & W. B. R. R. makes frequent trips through our town.

The Lutheran congregation are erecting a commodious parsonage near their Church on the hill.

An effort is being made to have a display of fire works here on the evening of the Fourth.

The shower on Tuesday made the street sprinkler happy—it saved him the trouble of collecting his fees.

It is rumored that the P. & R. R. R. Co., intend to erect another round house here soon. At present they only have shelter for about half of their engines.

Mifflin Items.

The hail storm which passed through this section on the 15th inst. did considerable damage to the fruit and grain.

G. B. Swank of Hazleton spent a short vacation at home recently.

The cherries which are generally so very plenty, especially in the hilly parts of this township, will be an unusually small crop this year.

Jacob Penebecker an aged gentlemen of this place is believed to be at the point of death.

Miss Mary Geiger of Mainville is spending a few days on a visit at this place and Hetlerville.

Several teams have been employed on the railroad to distribute sills, receiving as pay forty cents per hour.

Mr. S. M. Hetler the agent for the Johnston reaper will be sadly disappointed, as will those who made purchases of him also, since the reaper factory at Brockport, N. Y., has been burned.

The festival at Smith's hollow was a success. Another will take place on Saturday evening for the benefit of the Mifflin band, several bands will be present. All are cordially invited.

Rev. McCutcheon preached in Catawissa on Sunday to fill the pulpit for Rev. Deimer who is ill.

H. W. Sterner, formerly of this place and is a graduate of the Millersville State Normal school has come on a visit to this place with his newly married wife.

"BUCHUPAIBA."

The Great International Show.

Main's Mammoth International Colliseum will pitch its tents in Bloomsburg Tuesday July Fourth, giving two entertainments, at 1½ and 7½ P. M. This grand amusement aggregation is now on its fourth year of successful business and is everywhere received with larger audiences at each successive visit. Its entertainments are new and original in many features, presenting a variety which cannot fail to delight all, while having nothing to offend the most fastidious. The especially notable features are: A school of trained horses, ponies and dogs; Denier's funniest of all funny Humpty Dumpty troupes; a royal troupe of English gymnasts, including the Herculean Fisher Brothers, in their feats of dexterity and strength; Young Victor, the Boneless Wonder, Prof. Wilton, the American Blondin; Pettit and White, comedians and song and dance men, a whole minstrel show in themselves; Mons. and Madame D'Alma, in their thrilling feats upon the high trapeze; John D'Alma, the modern Hercules, who will at each exhibition lift with his teeth a cask containing forty two gallons of water; Sam Lang and Miss Dolly Sharpe in their German character acts and Miss Sharpe in her charming Skipping Rope Jig; Retlow and Alton, Kings of the Double Horizontal Bar; Prof. Dougherty's Silver Cornet Band, and a score of other attractions which go to make up the best aggregation of talent now on the road. The public will find everything exactly as advertised, and will see a 50 cent show for 25 cents. Grand free exhibition of tight rope walking by little Maud D'Alma, previous to the opening of the afternoon performance. No gorgeous street exhibition is advertised and none is given, the band only making a parade. For particulars read the advertisement elsewhere and see bills, lithographs, pictorials, &c., so freely distributed by the company. Recollect the free rope ascension and grand display of fireworks.

Commencement Week.

The exercises of the week at the Normal school began on Monday evening with an entertainment by the Model school. The large hall was crowded with spectators. Everything passed off pleasantly, and the entire performance indicated that great labor had been done by the teachers in the preparation of the programme. The only drawback for the audience was the common one in the Normal hall of not being to hear distinctly, though the children spoke as loud as they could. The programme was as follows:

Call Me not Back, piano duet, Lottie Kuhn, Prof. Niles; Work of the Brownies, pantomime, Model school; Tripping through the daisies, piano duet, Mary Thomson, Prof. Niles; Rondo, piano duet, Annie Ent, Prof. Niles; Gift of the Fairy Queen, Model school; The sparrows are calling, vocal duet, Lottie Kuhn, Vida Miller; Bohemian girl, trio., piano, violin, violincello, Miss Stiles, Dora and Prof. Niles; Lord Malapert of Moonshiners Castle, Model school; Fun and frolic, piano duet, Helen John, Alice Brockway; Rolling hoop, piano duet, Annie Ent, Eva Rawlins; March, Model school; The night before the battle, vocal quartette, Misses Hutchinson and Tyrrell. Messrs. Wells and Dilley.

On Tuesday the examination of under graduates was continued, and in the evening another large gathering of people listened to an address by Hon. H. B. Payne of Kingston whose subject was "Personal Power." This lecture was open to the public, though it was for the literary societies of the school. Mr. Payne is an able writer and a pleasant speaker, and he treated his subject in his usual happy manner.

On Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock the Class Day exercises took place on the campus. The entire programme was an interesting one and was well carried out. The order of the exercises was as follows:

Piano solo, Miss Nellie Moffit; Pres. address, Miss Lilian Brown; History, E. Gertrude LaShelle; Music, The Moonlight Dance, Misses Ayres, Reagan, Tyrrell, and Vaughan, Messrs. Dilley and Moore; Class oration, The Men for the Times, James W. Dilley; Class poem, Miss Jennie Tyrrell; Music, Instrumental duet, Misses Rogers, Reagan; Prophecy, Miss Ida Harkness; Essay, "The advantages our Country affords to Women," Miss Jennie Helman; Chorus, Away, Away, By the Class; Presentation of Gifts, Hannah Rubin; Presentation of Memorial, By the President; Class song, By the Class.

The presentation of gifts to the members of the Class, by Miss Hannah Rubin, was something new for the Normal Class days, and was full of humor, which was especially enjoyed by the Class.

The gift presented to the school is a very andsome one, and quite as acceptable as anything that could have been given. It is a fountain for the campus, and consists of a centre piece of three children, two of whom are drawing in a fish net while the third is standing with a basket of fish on his head and the water jets play gracefully over the whole group.

The exercises of commencement began on Thursday morning at 9.30 o'clock when the following programme was gone over, in the presence of a large audience.

Prayer, Rev. John Donahue; Music, (Grand March from Tannhauser) Wagner, Kate Davids, Mary R. Curran, Dora A. Niles and Nellie M. Low; Salutatory, Carrie C. Rodgers; Essay, Girls of the Past and Present, M. Burnette Stiles; Essay, If We Plant Lilies, We will Gather Lilies, Lillian Brown; Essay, The Work of the Teacher, Helen M. Gossler, Oration, We are the Architects of Our Own Fortunes, James W. Dilley; Music, Vocal Quartette. The Fisherman and His Child. White. Louisa G. Hutchison, Jennie Tyrrell, O. B. Wells, J. W. Dilley; Essay, Ruins of Time, Stella Sickler; Essay, Power of Early Impressions, Hattie Robbins; Essay, Mere Knowledge will not make successful teaching, Jennie Tyrrell; Essay, keeping up appearances, Emiline Fetherolf; Music, Piano Solo, Pollacco Brilliant, Bohm, M. Burnette Stiles; Essay, Woman's Place in Politics, Lizzie M. Church; Essay, The value of Self-Reliance, E. Gertrude LaShelle; Essay, The Thought Element in Education, Nellie L. Moffitt; Oration, The Past and Future of Our Schools, Henry Bierman; Music, Vocal Solo—Angel's Serenade, Braga, Lousia G. Hutchison; Essay, The Women for The Times, Hannah Rubin; Essay, The Power of Temptation, Nora M. Finney; Essay, Influence of a Good Mother, Jennie Helman; Essay, Let Their Be Light, May Reagan; Music, National Medley, Piano: Irene Philips; Violin, Maude Dreisbach, Mary Monroe, Dora Niles; Clarinet: Harry Eshleman; Violincello: Prof. Niles.

CONFERRING OF DEGREES.

Music, Rigoletta. Arranged by Theo. Thomas, Piano: M. Burnette Stiles, Kate C. Davids; Violin: Dora Niles; Violincello, Prof. Niles; Valedictory, Mary L. Lott; Music, Chorus, From Faust; Benediction.

At the close of these exercises the Alumni Association held its annual meeting in the Chapel, and after some literary productions, and the transaction of business they adjourned to the Exchange Hotel to enjoy the Alumni dinner. Here a splendid banquet awaited them, and all did ample justice to it. Neat bills of fare were placed at every plate, and the tables under the supervision of Mrs. Tubbs were arranged with exquisite taste. The Menu embraced all the delicacies of the season. When the rattling of dishes had ceased Prof. Waller called the company to order, and a number of toasts were proposed, and responses made by different ones, after which the meeting adjourned.

Those who are much in the hot sun should avoid drinking large quantities of cold water; it is better to take small draughts at frequent intervals. If some of the cold water is poured upon the temples, the temperature of the body will be rapidly reduced, and with better effect upon the system than if taken internally. A light, white hat is far more comfortable than a black, heavy one, and if it has a wet cloth, or even a fresh cabbage leaf placed in the crown, it will be all the more cool and comfortable. A white handerchief tied loosely about the neck will protect it from the burning sun. A bath at night is very refreshing, but should not be prolonged.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

HAY FEVER.

Mr. A. L. Avery, Pharmacist, Newark, N. J.—Having been severely afflicted for eleven years with Hay Fever, after trying almost everything without avail, I gave up all hopes of being cured, when I purchased of you a box of Ely's Cream Balm. To my surprise, after a few applications, I was entirely relieved. R. Watson Harris, Letter Carrier No. 14, New P. O., Newark, N. J.

I have been a Hay Fever sufferer for three years, and have often heard Ely's Cream balm spoken of in the highest terms, but did not take much stock in it because of the many quack medicines. A friend persuaded me to try the Balm, and with the most wonderful success. This recommendation you can use for the benefit of Hay Fever sufferers. T. S. Geer, Syracuse, N. Y. Price 50 cents.

Apply into nostrils with little finger.

PERMIT NO SUBSTITUTION.

Insist upon obtaining Florestons Cologne. It is pre-eminently superior in premanence and rich delicacy of fragrance.

"THE COMMODORE."

Jos. L. Foote, the Commodore, Elgin, Ill. says Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of sciatica with one application, thoroughly applied. It also cured him of a severe cold and cough. He thinks it a very valuable remedy, and will never be without it.

ANSWER THIS QUESTION.

Why do so many people we see around us, seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75 cts., we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by J. H. Kinports. may 5-eow

The Celery Crop.

This has became so popular a crop that every person who has a garden desires to have enough for family use once or twice a week throughout the winter and a portion of the spring. The time will soon be here when at least the ground should be selected and in measure prepared. We have frequently set out the first rows in the last week of June; but for the general crop a latter date is preferred, say up to the middle of July. It is seldom that very late planted celery comes to much: in fact, when we have set out any—and it was never much—at a date later than that usually adopted by experienced growers, we have never had a yield worth growing. At the best the stalks were short and stubby and tough.

All celery-growers are aware that the ground cannot be too strong for the plant. It has a very small root and can gather only a short supply of fertilizing substances: hence the soil should be as rich as possible in order that there shall be within reach of the roots a needed amount of nutriment.

Our method has uniformly been to set the plants in single rows, as by it we have always obtained the largest stalks, and have found them to blanch better and to be tenderer and sweeter. Perhaps more in quantity can be obtained from planting two, three and four rows together, but our experience has been, so far as the supply for domestic use is concerned, that the single row is to be preferred.

Many persons set their plants very nearly on the surface of the ground, as they would a cabbage or tomato, and depend upon banking up the rows. This requires a wide space between the rows to supply the neccessary soil, while any advantages it may possess we never could discover. Our plan is to dig a trench six or eight inches in depth, and twelve to fourteen wide, then loosen the bottom thoroughly from six to eight inches more, and mix completely this soil with an abundance of short well-rotten barnyard manure. The plants should be watered early in the morning and in the evening, and shielded from the sun from nine or ten to five o'clock, until they are firmly established and well started to grow. In a few weeks they should have applied, once or twice a week, a liberal dose of strong manure water. As the plants grow the soil should be gradually drawn up to them: and any surplus or weak leaves should be removed. As the plants grow the soil should be also increased, always being very careful that the "leader" of the plant is kept clear of any obstruction. This is particularly important when the plant has pretty much its entire growth, and the "walling" or banking-up process begins.

Cool weather is not backward to celery. In fact in October the plant grows more vigorously than at any other time. Let it be remembered that with a moist, rich soil and careful attention, the celery crop is as certain as any other; but there is no other that will so markedly show the effects of neglect and bad treatment. It will simply result in a waste of whatever time and money may have been bestowed upon it.—Germantown Telegrayh.

Curing Diseased Trees.

(Tribune & Farmer)

FEEDING DISEASED PEACH TREES.—Plenty of the right kind of food not only prevents disease in trees, but often helps towards recovery. For the cure of the "yellows" in peach trees, Prof; Goessmann recommends the application of from three to four pounds of muriate of potash, applied in a radius of eight feet, but not within a foot of the trunk. This is for trees of from six to eight years' growth. It is well to mulch the ground first, and apply the fertilizer on the mulching, so as to distribute it. He is under the impression that the chloride of the muriate of potash exerts a specific effects in destroying the fungus, if this is not so, wood ashes will be as good as the muriate. He would always give complete plant food; between blooming and fruit-forming the nitrates and phosphates are needed. It is well to supply an excess, that the plant may accomodate itself to what it needs. The reputation of wood ashes as a fertilizer rests on the same basis as that of barnyard manure; it is a complete but not a sufficient fertilizer. The observations, of which an account has been given, afford suggestions rather than proofs. Not one essential element can supersede another. This is not a matter of opinion, but of thousands of analyses.

WASHING FRUIT TREES.—There are insects common to all trees, and it is only by constant care that we can get satisfaction from our trees. On the pear and apple there is a scale insect which attaches itself to the bark and injures the tree if allowed to remain. It is known that any greasy matter is death to insects. Thus there are many compounds of this nature used for washing trees. Kerosene oil for hard wood has been used with success by many persons, but it must not get on the foliage. One form of wash is made by adding one pound of whale oil soap to three gallons of warm water, stirring well and applying with stiff broom or brush. The trunk should be rubbed thoroughly and hard, to remove as much as possible of lose bark, so that the liquid may reach every part of the surface. Another good wash is weak lye from wood ashes. A third wash is made by adding two quarts of soft water readily combined by stirring, and should be applied like the whale oil application. The best results are obtained by washing the tree about three times during the season, applying the first in March or April, the second in June and the last in August. The insects as well as moss, will be effectually removed, leaving the bark in a fine healthy condition.

Sailor's Superstition.

It is said that before the sailing of the Portsmouth from Hampton Roads the following incident occurred: It seems that the ship had a pet cat, to which the crew were much attached, and that just previous to sailing a new and strange feline was found on board. The old cat, upon discovering the presence of the intruder, offered battle, and its ground selected proved to be the extreme end of the bowsprit, from which, however, the combatants in the battle both fell and were drowned in the swift current. At this untoward accident the sailors were terribly disconcerted, and predicted, with many doleful sighs and shakes of the head, the long passage which followed.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Of all the remedies on earth that well may claim attention, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil commands especial mention. For wondrous power to cure disease, its fame there's none can throttle. Its merits are not in the puff, but are inside the bottle. Rheumatism, neuralgia, sore throat, asthma, bronchitis, diptheria, etc., are all cured by Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Summer Complaints

At this season, various diseases of the bowels are prevalent, and many lives are lost through lack of knowledge of a safe and sure remedy. PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER is a sure cure for Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Summer Complaint, etc., and is perfectly safe.

Read the following:

BAINBRIDGE, N. Y., March 22, 1881.
PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER never fails to afford instant relief for cramp and pain in the stomach.
JOSEPH BENDITT.

NICHOLVILLE, N. Y., Feb. 2, 1881.
The very best medicine I know of for dysentery, cholera morbus, and cramps in the stomach. Have used it for years, and it is sure cure every time.
JULIUS W. DEE.

MORGAN'S, IOWA, March 12, 1881.
I have used your PAIN KILLER in severe cases of cramp, colic and cholera morbus, and have almost instant relief.
L. E. CALDWELL.

CARNESVILLE, GA., Feb. 28, 1881.
For twenty years I have used your PAIN KILLER in my family. Have used it many times for bowel complaints, and it always cures. Would not feel safe without a bottle in the house.
J. B. IVIE.

SAGO, ME., Jan. 29, 1881.
Have used PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER for twelve years. It is safe, sure, and reliable. No mother should allow it to be out of the family.
H. I. NATES.

ONEIDA, N. Y., Feb. 10, 1881.
We began using it over thirty years ago, and it always gives immediate relief. Would hardly dare to go to bed without a bottle in the house.
W. O. SPERRY.

CONWAYSBORO, S. C., Feb. 25, 1881.
Nearly every family in this section keeps a bottle in the house.
DR. L. MORTON.

U. S. CONSULATE,
CREFELD, RHENISH PRUSSIA, Feb. 8, 1881.
I have known PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER almost from the day it was introduced, and after years of observation and use I regard its presence in my household as an indispensable necessity.
I. S. POTTER, U. S. Consul.

BURTON-ON-TRENT, ENG.
I had been several days suffering severely from diarrhœa, accompanied with intense pain, when I tried your PAIN KILLER, and found almost instant relief.
H. J. NOONE.

21 MONTAGUE ST., LONDON, ENG.
During a residence of twenty-three years in India, I have given it in many cases of diarrhœa, dysentery, and cholera, and never knew it to fail to give relief.
R. CLARIDGE.

No family can safely be without this invaluable remedy. Its price brings it within the reach of all.

The Secret

of the universal success of Brown's Iron Bitters is simply this: It is the best Iron preparation ever made; is compounded on thoroughly scientific, chemical and medicinal principles, and does just what is claimed for it—no more and no less.

By thorough and rapid assimilation with the blood, it reaches every part of the system, healing, purifying and strengthening. Commencing at the foundation it builds up and restores lost health—in no other way can lasting benefit be obtained.

[illegible] Dearborn Ave., Chicago, Nov. 7.
I have been a great sufferer from a very weak stomach, heartburn, and dyspepsia in its worst form. Nearly everything I ate gave me distress, and I could eat but little. I have tried everything recommended, have taken the prescriptions of a dozen physicians, but got no relief until I took Brown's Iron Bitters. I feel none of the old troubles, and am a new man. I am getting much stronger, and feel first-rate. I am a railroad engineer, and now make my trips regularly. I can not say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine. D. C. SLOAN.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not contain whiskey or alcohol, and will not blacken the teeth, or cause headache and constipation. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sleeplessness, dizziness, nervous debility, weakness, &c.

Use only Brown's Iron Bitters made by Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore. Crossed red lines and trade-mark on wrapper.

Back Ache

POSITIVELY CURED BY

Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.

Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:

First.

Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefacient, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.

Second.

Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.

Third.

Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.

Fourth.

Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will not even relieve.

Fifth.

Because over 5000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use.

Sixth.

Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.
